Some thoughts really get into his nerves sometimes, and it's actually funny lol cuz you can actually see him slowly descend into madness. He has so many reasons to cut it off completely, but always finds excuses not to do so. Whenever I asked him why, he would always look away from me. It's almost like him putting his nightmares on loop, and sometimes I do indeed want to slap his face and cut it off for him. That might hurt him even more, but at least I would have him all by myself.

Do you think it's fair?

No.

Then why?

...

What if everyone forgets about you?

I'm responsible for all the consequences of bearing that thought in my mind anyway.

but I don't mind destroying the whole multiverse just so you and one remember me, pretty sure me from another universe would do the same thing.
