My sister said someone jumped off the building at Pratt today, tbh I really don't know what to say. If some stranger tries to kill themselves in front of me I probably won't do anything either (but ofc taking other's life is a completely different story and I generally won't let it happen). There isn't much to comment, and I know how it feels, sometimes death could feel like the last remaining kindness from this world.

I think I'm a horrible human being, but they really only have two options, either live or die successfully, trying to die and failed is the worst of the worst, too many consequences, and people will lock them up just to make them "normal" again.
