

---

Hello! this one might be random and wont make any sense since im hella stressed rn. i dont think i make sense because i dont think myself make any sense, like how do i know i make any sense. eternal sunshine of the spotless mind, i freaking love this movie, the world forgetting by the world forgot and each prayer accepted and wish resigned, love it. also need three letters, probably two pi and one from relativity, so fucking stressed, worst case scenario, high school teacher, need to move a lot if i want to stay in academia, which i dont want to, i just want to stay in one place. kinda funny that i was the one that tried to run away from everything, and now im the one who wants to stay. i dont think ill live that long, im not saying this to scare anyone but i really just dont think ill live that long. has anyone every felt like what they wanted doesnt belong in this world, or searching for an answer that doesnt even exist, so what can i do, what do i do. i fucking hate this cycle, i know ill be in a totally different mood few days later, like hit and run. i dont know, i really just cant believe in what i cant see, it never went well when i actually believe in something. maybe this world is just a scam, since im poor got no money, they take away my words, my feelings, and whatever i have left. why did i do that? i was finding myself a reason to offer myself, but i failed so i still exist. what an i scared of, does everything sounds scary. so why cant i just end everything myself, cuz it fucking hurts, i had to turn myself into a mindless doll in order to not think of anything, whole body shaking, world spinning, then realize i will turn into a real doll if i dont eat something. now is the time ppl take my words, telling me what i should do instead. what i wanted,