I've recently started drinking water, idk I normally only drink water after bouts or practices but cold water is surprisingly good. Two finals left, one starts in 12hrs, I only need a 75 to get an A tho and the final is open book. I will update less frequently cuz I really want to start working on the animated short, probably different name too, I'm thinking about wildfire, but without any fire. I think the best way to fend off this eternal loop is to keep myself busy.

I've also start thinking about random things out of context recently, like why can't cats fly, why bbern doesn't teach more upper-division math classes, or how someone can look so good in everything.

is it true, that everyone knows the answer except for me
