I hate big events or ppl wanting to take a pic of me, there was a ceremony few weeks ago for a honor society, only around 8 ppl got in me included, but yeah I just didn't show up, then they emailed me to go to the main office and pick up the materials and sign the book, I ghosted them, then they email me again the next day and I was like right in front of the office because my class just ended so I just walked in and ask the director for my stuffs, she was kinda pissed lol, I mean I understand I will be pissed too if I were her.

There is one sentence that I really like, from an old friend who talks to himself a lot. "I'm craving a future where I don't exist" he says.
