When I was stupid I always thought about buying a pure-breed pet from some breeder, but now think about it, it really is a pet version of slavery. Shelter cats or dogs are just way cuter imo. I actually killed a rabbit when I was a kid, it's similar to Kagura's story from gintama, I still remember digging a hole and burying it myself. That's why I'm always very careful around rabbits.

I don't know where to start, first time holding something and still don't know what to do. I have so many ideas but don't know how to draw them. Compared to drawing, writing here is just so much easier. still nothing tho compare to what you're doing. I don't know what to do. I already know this summer is going to be hell. I do have an internship, but I still have way too much free time left. Like, genuinely, how am i allowed to do nothing over the summer when I am the one who caused everything.
